Provenance

The American Chemical Society was founded in 1876 by 35 chemists. It was started in New York City but since then has had 83 local sections developed. The society is a nonprofit organization that aims to benefit those within the discipline of chemistry and chemical engineering. Kalamazoo's local section was began in September 1942 by community members heavily involved with Western Michigan University, The Upjohn Company, and Kalamazoo College as well as multiple other organizations.

Scope and contents

Executive committee minutes, annual reports, memos, correspondence, event planning, and public outreach materials of the Kalamazoo section of the American Chemical Society. Photographs of important society events such as National Chemistry Week, Boy Scout Merit badge ceremonies, and High School Chemistry Award ceremonies are also included within this collection.

The American Chemical Society- Kalamazoo Section

The records of the American Chemical Society- Kalamazoo Section- range from the foundation of the section in 1942 to the present. Contained in the collection are organizational records such as the original Charter and Constitution, Secretary's notes, Treasurer's records, and Executive Committee minutes, as well as program information, conference programs, photos, articles, and awards. The section's dedication to improving science education in the elementary, junior, and high school levels is demonstrated by the number of programs dedicated to students. Among the most successful are the American Chemical Society Chemistry testing offered to high school students in conjunction with National Chemistry Week and the Science Expo held for elementary students. A history of the section, written by members J.T. Correll, Hugh V. Anderson, and Robert H. Levin from 1942-1967 and a later version covering 1942-1967 and 1967-1981, written by R. Bruce Moffett, gives the researcher a historical tool with which to evaluate the section's progress and growth in the Kalamazoo community.
